COMMUNICATIVE GRAMMER

SUBJECT-VERB AGREEMENT

Subject-verb agreement is a fundamental concept in English grammar that ensures that the subject and verb in a sentence agree in number (singular or plural).

Basic Rules

1. Singular subjects take singular verbs: A singular subject (one person, place, thing, or idea) takes a singular verb. Example: "The cat sleeps.“
2. Plural subjects take plural verbs: A plural subject (more than one person, place, thing, or idea) takes a plural verb. Example: "The cats sleep.“
3. Collective nouns take singular verbs: Collective nouns (groups of people, animals, or things) take singular verbs. Example: "The team is winning.“
4. Indefinite pronouns take singular verbs: Indefinite pronouns (everyone, someone, anyone, etc.) take singular verbs. Example: "Everyone is invited."

Special Cases

1. Compound subjects: When two or more subjects are connected by "and," use a plural verb.Example: "John and Mary are coming.“
2. Either/or subjects: When two subjects are connected by "either/or" or "neither/nor," use a singular verb.Example: "Either John or Mary is coming.“
3. Subject-verb agreement with prepositional phrases: Ignore prepositional phrases when determining subject-verb agreement.Example: "The team, including the coach, is winning.“

Common Errors

1. Incorrect verb form: Using a singular verb with a plural subject or vice versa.
2. Ignoring collective nouns: Treating collective nouns as plural instead of singular.
3. Misusing indefinite pronouns: Using plural verbs with indefinite pronouns.

Verb tenses

Verb tenses are a crucial aspect of English grammar, as they help express the timing and duration of actions or states. Here's a comprehensive overview:

Types of Verb Tenses

1. Present Simple: Used for habitual or routine actions, general truths, and future actions that are already planned or scheduled.Example: "I eat breakfast every morning.“
2. Present Continuous: Used for actions that are happening at the moment of speaking, or for actions that are temporary or changing.Example: "I am studying for my exam right now.“
3. Present Perfect: Used for actions that started in the past and continue up to the present moment, or for actions that happened at an unspecified time in the past.Example: "I have eaten breakfast already.“
4. Present Perfect Continuous: Used for actions that started in the past and continue up to the present moment, with an emphasis on the duration of the action.Example: "I have been studying English for three years."

5. Past Simple: Used for completed actions in the past, or for actions that happened at a specific time in the past.

Example: "I went to the store yesterday.“

6. Past Continuous: Used for actions that were happening at a specific time in the past, or for actions that were interrupted by another action.

Example: "I was studying when my friend called me.“

7. Past Perfect: Used for actions that happened before another action in the past, or for actions that happened at an unspecified time in the past.

Example: "I had eaten breakfast before I went to school.“

8. Past Perfect Continuous: Used for actions that started before another action in the past and continued up to that point, or for actions that happened at an unspecified time in the past.

Example: "I had been studying English for three years before I moved to the US.“

Places of Articulation

1. Bilabial: Sounds produced with both lips (e.g., /p/, /b/, /m/).
2. Labiodental: Sounds produced with the lower lip and upper teeth (e.g., /f/, /v/).

Manners of Articulation

1. Stops: Sounds produced by blocking airflow with the tongue or lips (e.g., /p/, /t/, /k/).
2. Fricatives: Sounds produced by directing airflow through a narrow channel (e.g., /s/, /z/, /f/, /v/).
3. Nasals: Sounds produced by allowing airflow through the nasal cavity (e.g., /m/, /n/, /ŋ/).
4. Liquids: Sounds produced by allowing airflow around the tongue (e.g., /l/, /r/).

- Vowel Production
- Vowels are produced by modifying the shape of the vocal tract, including the tongue, lips, and jaw. The three main dimensions of vowel production are:

1. Height: The vertical position of the tongue (e.g., /i/ is high, /a/ is low).
2. Front-back: The horizontal position of the tongue (e.g., /i/ is front, /u/ is back).
3. Rounded-unrounded: The shape of the lips (e.g., /u/ is rounded, /i/ is unrounded).

Consonant Clusters
